Farmers' Week at Columbia.

Since the Missouri State Bank and Walton Trust Company have generously offered to pay the expenses of a trip to Columbia this winter, of four winners in the young men's corn contest at the Fair at Butler in September, it might be well to say what Farmers' Week is and what it is like. The State University, Agricultural College, Experiment Station and Farm are all at Columbia. It has become the custom of the various organizations of the state that farmers are interested in to hold their annual meetings there during the first week in January, and this is called "Farmers' Week."

The cattle breeders, horse and mule breeders, sheep breeders, swine breeders, corn growers, wheat growers, dairymen, cheese makers, etc., are all there.

The State Corn Growers' Association hold their annual corn show there then, and anyone attending the meeting of one of these associations has the benefit of all. The Agricultural College takes charge, makes out a program and arranges details that everyone may get the most benefit and pleasure out of his visit.

The College, University, city and all unite in looking after and entertaining their guests. Committees meet all trains and see that all are located for board and lodging. You have liberty to see everything and guides are furnished to show and explain. There is a large auditorium in the University in which you will listen to lectures and see demonstrations by the very best men in their lines. The program each day begins at 9 a. m. and every minute is occupied till 10 p. m. The last two meetings have closed with a free banquet for the guests, one of the most enjoyable features. In fact you are made to feel for that week at least, that the farmer is very decidedly "it," and things are coming his way.

Now the young man may say, "This may all be very interesting for Jewett for he is an old crank on farming anyway, but I don't think it would interest me. I could take half of that $20 and get lots more fun out of it." All true perhaps, but let me tell you these men who are offering to put up your expenses are not doing it to give you a good time alone, but in the expectation that you will see and hear things that will strengthen your interest in the farm. That by coming in contact with up-to-date men and methods you will see that the farmer as a man need not take off his hat to any other on earth, that his work is not all toll and drudgery and that if he understands his business as well and uses the same amount of brains and energy his chances of success are as good as in any other business. They expect that if you get interested you will make a better farmer than your father, that your example will influence others and agriculture in Bates county will be boosted up a notch. Suppose you are not particularly interested in farming, won't the trip and outing be well worth the cost? And the cost could hardly be less. Simply tell the Missouri State Bank that you want to enter the contest and get the 20 best ears of corn that you have helped to grow this season and take it to the Fair.

Now a word to the older farmers. Why not go yourself this time? If you have worked on the farm all the year, you deserve and can afford a week's vacation and the cost is trifling. $20 will be ample. These meetings can't help being a benefit. I will not say that all the best men of the state attend them, but I will say that those that do attend are among the best and most progressive men in the state. You will get a lot of ideas, but if you don't get a single new one that you can use, if you don't come back full of enthusiasm and pride in your business you will be very different from anyone I have seen who has attended and feel that you are well paid. P. J. JEWETT.

Mrs. Fannie Morilla.

Mrs. Fannie Morilla, wife of E. E. Morilla of Pleasant Gap, departed this life at Excelsior Springs on Friday, July 5th. The remains were brought to this city Sunday and the body interred in Oak Hill cemetery Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Morilla though in the prime of life was in bad health and was taken to Excelsior Springs some months ago in the hopes that she would improve, but the effort was unavailing. Besides a devoted husband, she leaves two little children to mourn their loss.

The Fourth in Bates County.

Saturday, July 4th, 1908, the one hundred and thirty-second anniversary of American Independence, was celebrated over Bates county in a patriotic but moderate and sensible manner.

Butler made no demonstration whatever—although most of those staying in the city that day had their own fireworks and displays. Places of business were open until late in afternoon when some of the merchants closed their doors and hid them to the woods and rivers. Very few people were in from the country, probably on account of the majority of the farmers being behind with their work on account of the wet weather.

The big celebration came off at Rich Hill as advertised, a good crowd attending. Besides the usual attractions and fireworks at night, a baseball game between the Rich Hill White Sox and the Archie team was pulled off Rich Hill winning with a score of 6 to 2. About 200 people and the Butler Band attended from this city.

Speaking, a fine dinner and concerts by the Home band were the attractions which drew quite a crowd to Merwin.

A fine little celebration was held at Elizabeth Chapel, in the shape of an excellent picnic dinner.

But few accidents were reported from over the county.

Senator Cockrell Coming Home.

Warrensburg Star.

Press dispatches from Washington are authority for the report that Senator F. M. Cockrell will spend the summer months at his old home in this city. The Senator's health has not been altogether the best and his close attention to his duties as a member of the Interstate Commission demands a much needed rest.
